And it comes in two stylish colors – brushed chrome and umber. Price: $200Where to buy: Bed, Bath and BeyondShop NowIn most food processors you can expect to find these standard functions: The cuts and chopA main compartments of standard food processors are bowls attached to rotating S blades that cut or slice meat, vegetables or other ingredients efficiently and evenly. You can usually adjust the size of the final slice product. Grind Milling functions such as mortar and pestle, except very quickly so that the natural oils in the seeds or nuts become extracted to make the paste. That means you can make your own tahini or peanut butter, as well as your own mincemeat. GrateClip your lattice knife into the main motor element to grate cheese, carrots and more quickly and effectively. Puree This Compartment Blender. Use it to make smoothies or mix other liquids. Mix and knead the doughDepending on your model, the regular blades of the main compartment may also be able to cope with the cake mixture or basic bread. High-end food processors will come with knives or special attachments that will knead the dough. Food processors can help save time and hassle in the kitchen, especially if you cook cooking every day or have a big family to feed. They come in a variety of styles and prices, so compare some of the top models before choosing the one that best suits your needs. We compile a list of our best food processors by doing research online and comparing sizes, capacities, prices and additional features. We are also considering third party product reviews. Blenders tend to work at higher speeds, making them perfect for mixing and mixing liquids such as smoothies. If the main reason you buy a food processor is to make smoothies, you may want to consider a blender instead. However, while a standard food processor may not mix liquids as quickly, it will have many other functions that may lack a special blender. The blender will not, for example, slice and cut vegetables. Thermomix is a highly efficient high-end device, and comes with a suitable price tag. If money isn't a concern or if you really like cooking and will use a whole set of functions, controls, and features, then Thermomix might be a good option. On the other hand, if you just want to try a food processor, or if you usually don't do more than cut or mix, thermomix may be redundant. It's quite expensive, and if you're not going to use additional features, a high-quality standard food processor will probably suit it. Nutribullet is a compact blender that also claims to cut and destroy. While blenders are efficient, Nutribullets are small and don't make enough cuts when it comes to cutting and slicing larger foods. Photo by Monstruo Estudio on Unsplash Is this content useful to you? Sometimes, the kitchen can become more stressful than a safe space, especially when you're more of a taken out person than a sous chef. But, if you're not good at slicing and dicing your hands, there's one useful item you really need at your desk: a food processor. Now, we're all well aware of what food processors do. But if you need a refresher, people basically save you a lot of valuable time usually wasting cutting, cutting, mincing, grinding, and even some help with mixing and purification. It is a simple device that is essential even for the most novice chefs to have an easier life in the kitchen. However, not all food processors are created equal. Here's some food to think about: if you're looking for a new food processor, make sure you keep an eye on important specifications including the variety of settings, the amount of food it can hold, and assemble convenience (and de-assemble for cleaning, of course). Here, the best food processors. This best food processor deserves the top spot on our list for one main reason: it has an impressive performance, but it is quite easy for everyone in the kitchen to use. Cuisinart's options include standard dicing knives, medium crushing discs, and stainless steel cutting/mixing knives to meet all your cooking and preparation needs, without the hassle of kere. Plus, if you dip and cut a large amount of giant vegetables, there is no need to fret. This food processor has an extra large Lexan 14-Cup work bowl, extra large Feed tubes for even the largest potatoes, and small and large thrusters to get it all easily. It also features seven food preparation arrangements and one-touch operations to make each recipe you handle a little easier. If you live in a more metropolitan area, then chances are you have a smaller living situation, which of course includes your kitchen being a smaller boy. So, if your cooking area is already narrow as it is, then lighten the load with this compact food processor. This is great for chefs cooking in small batches thanks to a 5 cup food bowl (enough for two servings), and it's a 3-in-1 design that will turn even the smallest area into a master Michelin star kitchen. This food processor can create eight different pieces of food, thanks to four different cutting cones, so now you can make extra long zoodle and cut vegetable chips easily. Plus, the design is petite enough to get into the smallest corner of your closet, so you don't have to play Tetris with your kitchen gadgets anymore. If you're hunting for the best bang for your money, look no further. The choice of this Hamilton Beach is not only for the budget price tag but also for its grade-A performance. This processor can cut and cut food at two different speeds to choose from, plus it has pulse control settings to save extra time and money. Stack design and snap make setting processors are easy, so there's no need to rotate and wrestle with your machine. And if you're not pre-cutting your vegetables and fruits (because why are you?), you're in luck: this food processor has an extra wide parachute to match the biggest eggplants, yams, and more with little or no fuss. The result: perfectly sliced and shredded material, at all times. If you have a few extra dimes to spare, then you need to invest in this best-selling food processor. It has been considered the Holy Grail of food processors for a reason: it handles most tasks in seconds and comes with a large number of eight slice discs and professional grade blades to choose from, including cutters that can be adjusted with precision to cut vegetables to your preferences. It also comes with two BPA-free bowls to switch between tasks: one small option for all your mincing and sauce mixing needs, and a larger bowl for slicing and grilling, or even baking dough. And don't worry about slippery hands, as this food processor has a special safety interlock system equipped with nonslip feeds and overload protection. It may be a bit of a splurge, but it's worth every shiny penny. Whether you already have a food processor or like the feel of a handheld gadget, this is the perfect kitchen pal for a quick cut. These mini food cutters may be small, but mighty enough to shoot perfectly sliced fruits, vegetables, and more in just seconds. The magic is in this powerful motor handheld device, which allows you to just point and shoot, so there's no need to clean the extra bowl. This nice gizmo comes with four different cones to choose from, so you can easily prepare food any way you want, and the extra large food space lets you cut even the biggest ingredients without being bothered. When you're done, just clean the device and throw the cone into the dishwasher—seriously, it's that easy. If you are new to this cooking (don't worry, many of us), then try this beginner option. Since you probably won't julienne-cut a lot of carrots, this eight cup food processor will make food preparation a little easier on you. It features a stainless steel s-blade for cutting and purifying and a reversible disc for slicing and crushing. Plus, it also has a large feed channel, two speeds to choose from, and pulse control for power and control over your accode. Also, bowls, lids and knives are all dishwasher safe, so you don't have to sweat after a messy meal. It is the simplest device for a simple chef, making cooking much less intimidating. Are you a professional chef or not, this food processor is definitely for cooks who want to take a more intense job. This insanely large food processor has a bowl that can take 3.5 quartets of food at a time, and also features a 1 horsepower motor that can cut through any meal almost too easily. This machine has a Liquilock seal system to secure everything you eat into it in place, plus plus parachute for all your preparation needs. In the case of knives, this food processor has a secure S blade that locks the place for easier and safer pouring after cutting your vegetables, and whip discs whipping heavy cream, egg whites and faster for a lighter and lighter pitch feel. If you're preparing a large batch for family get-togethers, then it's time to pull out the heavy artillery. Take less time to prepare the meal with this ultra-wide 14-up bowl, ready to hold a large number of servings in minutes. If you're trying to dice or puree roots or larger fruits, there's no need to worry because this food processor features an extra wide parachute. It also features two speeds, pulse control, a very easy-to-clean touchpad, and LED indicator lights to keep you alert. Also, it includes five attachments for slicing, kneading, cutting, and more as you like. Plus, cleaning is very easy thanks to its attachments and bowls that are dishwashed safely. Like Goldilocks, you need something right, so there's no need for compact style or ultra-wide bowls. That's where the food process from Hamilton Beach comes in. It has a 10-cup food processor that can enter most kitchens and includes three different attachments to choose from: an S-blade, a shredder disc, and a slicing disc. It also comes with continuous feed, pulse function, and an easy lock cap to keep things simple. All removable parts are dishwasherable, making post-meal cleaning sessions a little less intense. If you live a wacky cooking lifestyle, then this simple food processor is exactly what you need to get the job done. Cooking for one? Then you don't need crazy specs or 14+ cup bowls. All you need is a mini food processor that will prepare your favorite foods with perfect portions, each and every time. That's why we recommend grabbing this 3.5 cup food processor, which has the power to cut, dice and even purify as you see fit without all the bells and whistles. It features one knife that really does it all for you, plus a handle and pouring nozzle to keep things simplified. This option has a two-speed option plus pulse control, and a BPA-free bowl, so your food is fresh and free of harmful toxins. And if you're a connoisseur of sauces or sauces, get excited: this option has a drizzly basin that easily combines liquid ingredients when processed, so you can master delicious dressings and sauces with ease. Let's be real for a second: fancy specs are nice, but you're all about staying on theme with your kitchen, if you have an aesthetic to uphold, then this food processor your answer. It features three attachments to choose from, seven food preparation options, a 14-cup Lexan work bowl, an extra large feeding tube, small and large thrusters, and a spatula to easily scoop up your creations. But, we know why you're really here: this food processor comes in seven impressive colors to choose from, so you don't have to worry about sacrificing style for to Who says you can't have it all? All?
